"LIVE IN THE CITY, TRAVEL THE WORLD"

I was in New York, USA last month, and it was so much fun exploring the city. I really love the energy and vibe there. The food is amazing, and there are so many things to see and do. I would definitely recommend visiting if you get the chance. The only downside is the high cost of living. Still, it was an amazing experience that I will never forget.

YING ZI

"A BRIGHT AND LOVING GIRL, WOOS OUT LOOKING FOR ADVENTURES"

I recently went to Singapore, and it was such a beautiful city. The food was amazing, and there was so much to see and do. I went to the Gardens by the Bay, which was absolutely stunning. The view from the top of the skyscrapers was breathtaking. I also loved visiting the Singapore Zoo and the Night Safari. Overall, it was an amazing trip, and I can't wait to go back again someday.

NEA ISLAND

http://www.neaisland.com/zh-hant

"A PRIVATE OWNED PARADISE" This island is really beautiful. The beach is so clean and the water is crystal clear. There are some amazing coral reefs to explore, and the marine life is incredible. I saw so many different fish and even a few dolphins. The hotel I stayed at was also amazing. It had a private beach and a pool, and the staff were very friendly and helpful. I would definitely recommend this place to anyone looking for a relaxing holiday.

"REALI LIKE CATS, DOGS AND CUPCAKES"

I recently went to Tokyo, Japan, and it was so much fun exploring the city. The food was amazing, and there was so much to see and do. I went to the Shibuya Crossing, which was so busy and exciting. I also loved visiting the Meiji Shrine and the Tokyo Tower. Overall, it was an amazing trip, and I can't wait to go back again someday.

YONG WEI

"ALWAYS BOTTOM IN EVERYTHING" I went to Sydney, Australia, last month, and it was amazing. The city is so beautiful, and there are so many things to see and do. I went to the Sydney Opera House, which was absolutely stunning. I also loved visiting the Sydney Harbour Bridge and the Bondi Beach. Overall, it was an amazing trip, and I can't wait to go back again someday.

Couch Surfing: A Brief Intro

Couch Surfing is the bastard child of a fantastic idea. As ideal that involves the notion that one less stranger in the world is one more friend in the universe. With a dedicated CouchSurfing members group 7 countries, it is an idea that has yet to become reality.

Once a part of the CouchSurfing movement, members are presented with options to host or surf. As hosts, members are encouraged to follow CouchSurfing by offering unofficial guides in their location and at the same time offering their friendship — something impossible a few years ago to imagine. For surfers, instead of opportunities abroad, potential travelers are said to be more with hosts who will then try to accommodate and snatch their decision of stay.

For those willing to travel down the unfamiliar path, CouchSurfing is more than an alternative means of travel. It is an avenue of the traveler: a homage to the idea of a world without strangers. So with the world, one couch at a time.

FALL FLAVOUR

Photos and Concept by Chione Zhang

One has to admit that studying in Europe appeals to anyone with an itchy foot. Where else in the world can you run with the bulls, stuff yourself with a thousand varieties of sausages, or try to find the Holy Grail underneath some museum, and not require a passport? Thanks to a hodgepodge of history, culture and cultural languages, Europe is also a hotspot for education, where universities here rank prominently among the top 100 in the world year after year.

It’s a place where cutting-edge technology meets centuries-old academic legacy, a place where you can study subjects from pure research to modern medicine, alongside a range of languages that challenge your throat muscles.

Whether you’re here for a solid education in business, arts or sciences, you can also indulge in some original afternoon English tea, ride a Greek mountain train, or drive through 3 countries without stopping. How’s that for incentive?

THE EUROPE SPECIAL

In photography, it’s often said that good composition is a matter of what you cut out of the frame. For this Europe Special, we’ve decided to cut out the clutter and focus on the essentials. Whether you’re planning a trip to Europe or simply looking for inspiration, we hope this special will provide you with the tools you need to make the most of your experience.

The special includes interviews with some of Europe’s top designers, a guide to the best food and drinks in each country, and tips on how to make the most of your time there. Whether you’re a seasoned traveler or a first-time visitor, this special is sure to inspire and inform.

Join us on this journey as we explore the diverse and exciting world of European culture, fashion, and cuisine. We hope you enjoy it as much as we did creating it!
BELGIUM

We explored Belgium through day trips starting with Antwerp, conveniently only 20 minutes drive away from Holland. Bruges and Brussels required longer trips but it still worth the slightly longer drive (snacking chocolates at the back seat, I’m not one to complain really). Only four words for Belgium: fries, chocolate, waffles & beer! Don’t forget to visit the magnificent great halls and churches, check out the Atomium (although not worth going up to be honest) and Manneken Pis (he’s just a small statue don’t expect much! If it’s any consolation, there are waffle shops beside him to reward your hard work).

NETHERLANDS

If I only had one country to visit, this would be it. It could be because of my boyfriend and his lovely family lives here, or perhaps Nana’s coffee trio, not the Amsterdam coffee shop scene, and my coffee addiction I indulged in almost everyday. It was also the easiest place to converse in English. It has clean train, friendly people and the least scams.

My personal favourites – must go: Zaamse Schans, must eat: Stroopwafel special, bitterballen, smoked sausages & all sorts of cheese (gouda) must do: tulips (cycling)!

FRANCE

Paris will always be at the top of everyone’s must-visit European cities list (happy, romantic, votre monde...), you name your hand). Albeit the smell of subways, I have to admit it truly deserves its city of love reputation. There’s too much to see in this lovely city to do justice. I personally feel that the 3-day museum pass and Paris Visite (metro and bus) would be a good value for money option if you intend to be a “hardcore” tourist – it covers most popular sights like the Louvre, the Arc de Triomphe, Versailles (through the garden). Last but not least, the most eats: crepes, Latin Quarter goodies and Pierre Hermés macarons.

GERMANY

Running on very, very low funds, we had to choose one. After two cities and the day room in Munich or Berlin. Since our ultimate was to eat beer, bread and sausages (aka knockwurst), drink in a beer hall, see a castle and of course, visit a concentration camp, Munich won us over by distance. On top of successfully completing our to-do list, I really enjoyed feeding the ducks and sailing on the grapes at English Garden. For those who want to visit the Neuschwanstein Castle, pre-book your ticket and make sure you walk to the viewpoint at the back of the castle (worth the short hike, I promise!).

CZECH REPUBLIC

As much as we wanted to explore Eastern Europe, Prague was the obvious choice. But other than non-poisonous tap water, the use of zephyr, the sights and everything being relatively cheaper, it didn’t really feel very “Eastern European” Join crowds of tourists and cover the main areas: Old Town, New Town, Jewish Quarter and the Prague Castle. Pick a hotel near the Old Town/Charles Bridge so you can just walk everywhere. Conclude the day all the river on a pedal boat or rebar and watch the sunsets (or for less romantic, chase the ducks). Accommodation here is really cheap, so spend more days and enjoy Prague.

Muriel’s trip started in The Netherlands and she made her way through 7 countries by coach, north-eastern rotation by train, ending in Munich where she took a direct flight back to Singapore.

POKE

Oh, where to start! Pizzas, pasta, gelato, more pizzas, mozzarella, and even more gelato! We had at least one 3-koop daily spill GINO! I loved Rome’s colosseum and ruins as well as the Spanish Steps (don’t watch out for even giving your made-misaike “free flowers” – it’s free for us, but you have to pay!). Bring a bottle of wine and people-watch while waiting for the sunset. No wine? No worries, there are plenty of ambiance-filled wine bars tour. And who can go to Italy without taking creative pictures with the Leaning Tower of Pisa? On our day trip we did – just leave your big bags at the station’s luggage storage service or lockers, most big train stations have them. For art and museum lovers, spend at least two days in Florence. One night in Venice is sufficient unless you have lots of money and enough time to get lost. Experience it right (check off the two orchestras’ music at St Mark’s square and ride a gondola at the Grand Canal for just 50 euros for a 3-minute piece of the 690piedolas (HANZA).

AUSTRIA

If you think the gelato diet ends in Italy, I have good news: Austria has lots of yummy gelatos too! We spent a day surrounded by snow-capped mountains in Innsbruck cycling around the city and to American Castle (pack some sandwiches and enjoy the lush greenery at the park for lunch). For the next two (rainy) days, we explored the city of Mozart and Sound of Music. For the not so fortune hunters, hike up Schiefling’s Votarsburg Fortress (save a few euros from the funicular and enjoy an expansive overlooking view of all this city). Take a break from the hustle and bustle of the cities and spend a night in the quaint but picturesque town of Hallstatt – my personal favourite (take note: book accommodation early!) A daytrip in tourist-filled Vienna was sufficient for us, I enjoyed the Stad museum, the street and my slice of stein apple strudel too.

STUDYING IN THE UK

The United Kingdom has garnered a widely envied reputation in delivering academic excellence dating back to hundreds of years. A birthplace of the English language, the UK is also known in areas of legal, cultural, financial, and architectural advancements. No matter what kind of learning environment you seek, you will find ample choices among the 3,600 diverse higher education institutions in the country.

LAW

New degrees in the UK will provide you with access to a diverse range of legal careers and also encompass tuition in a wide range of other professions in the fields of education and politics.

Studying law in the UK requires a 3-year undergraduate degree programme which results in an LLB (Bachelor of Laws) - a bachelor’s degree. Students generally enrol in stipulated full-time courses at the end of secondary school. As a graduate, students can then choose to define their career path as barristers or solicitors.

Commonly known as the bar vocational course, the barrister’s course lasts throughout an academic year. At the end of the course, successful students will be called to the bar, granting them the qualification to practice as a lawyer.

To be a fully-fledged solicitor, students will need to complete a Legal Practice Course lasting 2 semesters. Students should be looking to complete at least 2 work placements in law firms during breaks in the final semester to increase their chances at gaining a position three years after graduation.

SOLNA aqua SUEDO WITH ECONOMICS

A BA in Social Sciences covers a broad range of subjects, which include programmes like politics, psychology, sociology, social policy, social research, criminology, gender studies, and development, which are included in other academic institutions. The programme combines both, giving you professional training as well as a higher degree.

As a Social Sciences student majoring in Economics, the 3-year graduate programme covers human development and international conflict, with rigorous emphasis on economic and social policy. Students must complete four essays in areas of interest or specialisation, which they can choose to focus on.

Generally, Social Sciences graduates move on to work in academia or policy making, or remain in such areas as social or youth work. Those with higher level qualifications in government and politics have good prospects as accountants and government advisors.

ENGINEERING

Engineers are in great demand worldwide with high employability. It's not surprising that Engineering is one of the top fields of study in the UK. There are several hundred programmes in major disciplines, from Chemical to Civil and Nuclear Engineering. Usually taking just 3 to 4 years to complete a Bachelor’s + Masters, graduate engineers are generally well-paid and in demand, with 3 of the most popular Master’s degrees being Computing, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering.

Depending on their field of study, engineers are employed everywhere from aerospace and IT to pharmaceuticals, and while engineering curriculums vary greatly, what remains the same is the extensive foundation students get in computing, mathematics, and the sciences. This is true, making engineers great career-earners, with many working in high-level management, thanks to their overall background.

LITERATURE

While Britain is the starting point for virtually all English Literature courses in the UK, BA in English Literature programmes are offered in a wide range of universities across the country, which will suit the needs of students who want to pursue a degree in this area.

The Global MBA Rankings 2011 provided by the Financial Times, lists the London Business School as the top school in the world, with 6 years out of the top 10, ranking them in the top 100 schools in the global university rankings. This is true for many literature programmes, which gives them a great deal of exposure to students from all over the world, which will be very beneficial.

I resolved never to learn when I was a child.

Selina’s LONDON EXPERIENCE

All of you want to know the London experience on my trip to London in this article “Selina’s London Experience” on www.corporatejet.com

Several days after checking into the hotel, I planned to visit the London Eye. I went to the hotel where the world diversified a day.

Only thing I forget is that I had to purchase a ticket which I didn’t do. I was in a total mess, but I didn’t get a ticket and I left the hotel.

The lady behind the counter told me not to worry. She said, “It’s a matter of fact.” I didn’t know what she meant.

The lady behind the counter was so kind. She said, “It’s a matter of fact.” I didn’t know what she meant.

THE PARENT TRAP

"Pack your bags! We're going on a holiday!" During the pre-planning stage, your parents' expectations are often high, and you might feel pressured to impress them. However, during the actual trip, you might find yourself feeling frustrated or even bored. Here are some tips to help you enjoy the experience:

1. IN THE CAR
   - Think ahead: Plan your route and stop by attractions that are of interest to you. Make sure to pack snacks and drinks.
   - Stay alert: Keep an eye out for interesting sights, and share them with your parents.

2. BREAKFAST TIME
   - Know your options: Research local restaurants and plan your breakfast stops in advance.
   - Make the most of it: Enjoy your breakfast as a chance to bond with your family.

3. THE WORLD IS OUT TO KIDNAP YOU
   - Be alert: Always be aware of your surroundings, especially in crowded areas.
   - Stay together: Keep your family group close, and never wander off alone.

4. SAY "CHEESE"
   - Capture memories: Take photos of your family and your experiences.
   - Be creative: Use natural scenery to enhance your photos.

5. Why are breakfasts so early? My stomach isn't even awake yet?
   - Adjust your schedule: Try to fit in a late breakfast on your last day to compensate.
   - Enjoy the experience: Breakfast is a great time to bond with your family.

If this sounds familiar, cheer up! You are not alone in your feelings. Solutions to get out of this parent trap! Don't worry, if you are the kind of person who tries to make your parents happy and get along, you are probably already doing it. Just remember to pack along your patience and tolerance before you set off.

Fast Track Savings

If you:
- Live at home, so don't have to worry about rent
- Don't have to pay a mortgage or other big bills
- Only spend money on shopping and clothes and food and friends

Then it's the right time to build your nest egg fast and get started on the road to a financial future by investing your savings into a product that fits part of the plan you think you want.

By starting to save early - even a little - every little bit will turn into a lot more tomorrow on your money and grow.

Here are a few tips to help you start saving:

- Dedicated savings account
  - Make savings a habit and keep your other habits like Facebook and social media under control.
  - Pay off any outstanding debt or loan that you're not ready to start saving.

- Endowment plans
  - Life insurance and regular savings into one - 100% of your savings go to endowment payments for a set number of years, and at the end of the term, you get your money back plus interest, typically fixed for longer than a regular savings account. DBS offers a range of endowment plans, some with returns higher than the current fixed interest rates.

The Singapore Women's Everest Team (SWET) is comprised of 6 young women who successfully reached the summit of the world's highest mountain in 2019. Q: HOW DID IT FEEL CHOSING TO GO INTO A LONG-DISTANCE RELATIONSHIP?

Many long-distance relationships are born in spirit of charming naiveté. The concept is an abstraction, perhaps unsurprisingly. It's pretty hard to picture yourself spending time in Singapore when you're stuck in a Swedish blizzard.

Instead, travelling to some exotic destination sounds like a great experience, and you'll be back together in a few months. Besides, you tell yourselves, between phone calls and the Internet, staying in touch will be no problem.

Q: HOW OFTEN DO YOU TALK TO ONE ANOTHER?

I love you

In our electronic age, separated partners have plenty of ways to stay in contact, from writing letters to chatting on Facebook. Perhaps the most typical medium, though, is Skype.

Providing both users have webcams and microphones, Skype (or any similar video calling programme) allows couples to see each other face over the Internet – so it's become pretty standard for modern long-distance relationships.

And why not? It's easy to use, it's available for free, and it’s the realised fantasy of every 1970's sci-fi movie.

Although many partners are unprepared at the beginning, long-distance relationships often evolve to be surprisingly durable. Just remember to keep busy, stay active, and meet new people and you’ll be able both to enjoy your exchange and keep your relationship intact.

#14 Bargaining

by Kay Lee Tan

“Pretty lady, special price for you!” Awww...you nice, right? Little do you know that special price might just be $5 more than what the item is really worth. Our best piece of advice? Learn the basics of bargaining before going abroad.

BARGAINING FOR BEGINNERS

When negotiating, the aim is to strike a fair deal, but remember, merchants will not sell when they are not making a margin. So, you need to be bold. Keep in mind, as a tourist you will quickly be sized up and sellers can tell who can bargain and who is a novice. Know your stuff or prepare to pay top dollar.

WHERE TO BARGAIN

This is a straightforward, but some gray areas exist. Obviously, if you’re in a mall with air con and employees are required to wear shirts, you can’t bargain. However, sometimes there are stores along the road with signs of “(approximately) fixed prices” – maybe try it anyway. For the bargaining behemoths through head to the markets. The areas with the loudest rent will have the lowest prices. Ask the locals for advice.

STRATEGIES

Okay, so you’ve found that perfect coffee mug for your mum (she’s gonna love it, for sure), but you want the best price so you can make more exciting purchases. Here’s how to secure the best deal.

Too Expensive!!!

ANCHORING: Wherever there’s a price tag, a buyer is able to tie the price down on an outcome. Often, the lowest price you will ever see. Sometimes, they will take it, but don’t go too low or they will think you are ignorant.

SURPRISED FACE: For the first number a seller throws out (and subsequent numbers if they are still being negotiated), give them your best surprised face. Open mouth and mouth as wide as you can, and say, “Oh my God, how did I not know that? This is all right.”

FAKE! Let’s be real. Price is not merely a number, it’s part of the negotiation. So, when you see prices in Cambodia. That price is fake. If the seller refuses to negotiate, it’s probably not worth it.

THE WALK AWAY: If the seller refuses to budge – walk away. If you were in the range of what they would sell the item for, they might likely concede or let you keep walking.

TIE IT OR LEAVE IT: Keep what you are willing to spend in your wallet and put the rest somewhere else. This is a deal. Say, “Okay, this is all right. Will you take it?”

BARGAINING: It’s usually best to begin by asking for a number of items together. This often leads to a better deal off the top of the whole amount.

DO’S & DON’TS

DO: use local currency
DON’T: be afraid to ask
DON’T: be afraid to hammer
DON’T: be afraid to ask for discounts
DON’T: be afraid to negotiate
DON’T: let the seller know you love an item, they will charge you more

BAREFOOT IN THAILAND

The human feet are amazing. They keep you grounded, and can take you far. They are exposed to the harshest of conditions yet remain supremely resilient. The feet see beyond the eyes. They are blind to prejudices and feel only what is truly there. It was this very connection and the search for a higher meaning, which led Singaporean educator Norman Novels to take him to the insightful world of Thailand. Norman lends all worldly pretensions behind and embarked on a month long journey to Thailand to practice Buddhism as a monk.

Mediation - The Mind and Body as One

A monk's day starts as early as 4 am. The congregation to meditate in the early hours of dawn. Every day without fail. Norman made his way to the prayer hall so to be a part of the believers' ritual nothing in action. Meditation helps stabilize the mind, but not without taking mental effort. It clears the body and mind behaving as a single element. The idea is to control the mind so that it becomes peaceful and focused. But there are always ways, especially in dawn. Monks once told Norman, in a flurry of entanglement walked off and dropped his prayer book down the stairs of the prayer hall. Having enough energy was crucial because Norman could only have two meals a day - both before the noon prayer.

Mindfulness is a test of patient as well as mental strength. Novels are expected to refrain from sexual chatter and entertainment.

The land of spirituality is hallowed. Meditation is considered a spiritual act, but it takes time to allow the mind to be aware of the present.

This is not just explored in the Thai culture. Most of us are either too preoccupied to think of the future or just that we don't live in the present. Even while being a human barrier for Norman. In Thailand, monks chant in Thai. This differs from the typical form of chanting in Pali that Norman was accustomed to in Pali is the ancient language of the earliest Buddhist scriptures. While he had memorized verses in Pali, the Thai chanting confuses him.

The Thai chanting gets even harder for those who stay and believe. For Norman, the monotony of the unemotional sound eventually became a testament of faith, at the essence of a common chant reverberated from his lips down to his feet.

Land of Enlightenment

Buddhism in Thailand is an authentic, unique experience in itself. Norman became a Thai Buddhist and practiced the Mahayana mantra. Originating from India, the Mahayana teachings are one of the two major types of Buddhism. The other is the Theravada tradition which Norman experienced before he presently went to Pali.

Thailand is a deeply religious country. At a staggering 51% it has the highest proportion of Buddhist adherents in the world. Buddhism is the majority religion in Pali. It is the constitutional requirement that all songs of Thai Buddhism must practice Buddhism. It is illegal to go into places there is no place mere elders in Buddhism than Thailand.

It was in that context that Norman, together with 5 other novice monks who were ordained in a Sangha, a Mahayana temple located in a small village located on Phuket, Thailand. Once there, they began their morning prayers and meditations.

It is in giving that we receive - St Francis of Assisi

After the morning meditation, Norman and the other monks would get ready to the nearby village about 2 kilometers away to beg for alms. Novels would barefoot to distribute the monk's offerings to the villagers, and they would prepare their own food. They rely on the generosity of the local Buddhist for sustenance.

In Buddhism, alms giving is not charity but a respect given by the laymen to a Buddha, maitreya or even spiritual person. It is often perceived as an opportunity to attain merit, religiously.

In the village, every household would wake up, and they would all come out of dawn preparing for the monks. Their devotion is strong. These villagers are very poor and barely having enough food of their own yet they give everything with whatever they can share.

Because of this very reason, Norman could not stop his barefoot journeys. It will not be an easy task. The journey started with walking out of the temple compound and onto the deserted road. Unfortunately, despite it usually tame onto the side of the road, where people walk. The will be knotted against the dirt and the grass, and at his pants feet. This will still only the gravel path as his pants feet. Things would only worsen with the sweltering heat. Norman says, "This monk or so was pure suffering at you are not used to the pain."

But there was no turning back, because the villagers were waiting for them. Upon reaching the destination, the villagers would come out and offer the food and the monks would eat the food. The first time Norman begged for alms, he had his feet bare foot - in mortification with humility.

It was a humbling experience to depend on them for food, said Norman. They knew him to work less and yet they give more willingly than most of us. As it is raised one mody, pudgy, pimpled, around the village hut. The villagers still came out to offer food. Then they ascended in the mid to receive offerings and placed them inside the alms bowl in the process. Their faith was instantaneous, strengthening Norman's resolve. While walking, Norman was lost in the bliss of the sensations of his feet.

He felt the pain and roughness of his exposed flesh as well as the softness of the mud, morning dew, and the rustling of nature. Being barefoot allowed him to connect with the ground that he came from. And it is back to the ground that we will all return.

STRESS RELIEF

SO, you've gotten yourself and a friend or two on a little trip! You may or may not have plans when you hit the ground at your destination. But have you considered what your day will be like while you're on route? Anyone know how to do weightlifting on your iPhone? Noooow? Well, here's a fun little game you and your friends can play together and probably annoy your neighbors at the same time!

DO THIS FIRST

1. Cut out all the cards individually. These are in rhyming sets of FOUR pictorial cards.

2. We've left 8 sets of template blanks for you to fill up yourself to add to the fun.

OH, SNAPPED!

HOW TO SNAP!

1. Shuffle all the cards so that they are randomly stacked, and then the dealer should deal each card out one at a time.

2. Look (and listen) carefully at the cards to see if the words rhyme.

3. When you hear or see the same rhyming words, show SNAP!

4. But don't get Snap Happy; it might be tricky.

5. Also, use a timer to foster more to increase the challenge.
