CONTENTS

02: Aussie Sound Fest
Party till your ears hurt down under!
06: On The Fly
Surfing on a thread...
08: Off the Beaten (Career) Track
Strange jobs you may or may not want.
10: Asian Indie Rock
What’s the scene?
15: The Emerald Isle
A whole lot o’ Ireland in a nutshell.
22: Ukule-hey!
Hawaiian string revolution!
24: Sound Style
Fashion for Music.

I’ll make your ears bleed!

04: Dr. Travel
14: Cheat Sheet: Biology
23: What’s up, Doc?
26: Another &$%^$ Day in Paradise
27: The List: Local Food
28: Happening

REGULAR STUFF

* Fine Arts: To create layouts, covers and amusing caricatures of other colleagues
* Graphic Design: To assist in conceptualisation and layout for print and web
* Web Design: To help us develop, expand and enhance our site
* Writing & Reporting: To conceptualise, research and write original stories
* Beverage Dispensing & Affiliated Services: To operate complex, multi-function automated coffee dispensers, have a working knowledge of basic barista (espresso, grande etc.), and remember which mug belongs to whom.

Fringe benefits include a shared table space, free Red Bull, pizza during deadlines, unlimited use of in-house exercise facilities (our office is a 3rd floor walk-up). We can accommodate flexible hours, since we’re always working. You should be creative, confident, and able to take direction, but still develop your own voice within a piece of work. Our work environment is fast-paced. What we are is a goal-oriented team of chronic workaholics, looking for other like-minded, impressionable young talents, to mould into our own, twisted image. We are not hiring right now, so don’t ask. But we are looking to nurture and develop future talent. Anyone not put off by the above should email 75 words or less about themselves and what position they’d be keen to fill to campusinterns@gmail.com.
SOUNDWAVE NATIONAL

Like all of Australia’s most valuable resources, the Soundwave Festival began underground in Western Australia. It started life as Gravity Soundwave, a one-off event, the name stuck, with ticket proceeds going to charity. The Soundwave continued to grow, reaching the capacity of the city’s main music venue, the Town Hall. The Soundwave Festival is now one of the biggest music festivals in Australia, pulling in crowds of over 100,000 people each year.

BIG RAY OUT, NATIONAL

After the dust settles from the festival, a host of other events take place, including the Big Ray Out, a massive music and arts festival that takes place in the town of Big Ray. The festival features a range of bands and artists, with a focus on the local music scene.

SOUNDWAVE FESTIVAL SYDNEY

The Soundwave Festival is held in Sydney at the Domain, one of the city’s most iconic locations. The festival features a range of bands and artists, with a focus on the local music scene.

FALLS FEST TASMANIA

The Falls Festival is held in Lorne, Victoria, for 17 years as well as at Marion Bay (Tasmania) for the last 7 years. Falls has been one of the most eclectic music festivals in Australia, with a range of bands and artists performing, from pop and rock to electronic and hip-hop.

THE PYRAMID ROCK FESTIVAL, MELBOURNE

The Pyramid Rock Festival is held in Phillip Island, 15km from downtown Melbourne, the festival is held over 3 days and 3 stages, there’s a mix of genres, with bands ranging from alt-rock to punk, with a focus on the local music scene.

HOMEBAKE MUSIC & ARTS FESTIVAL, SYDNEY

A 100% homegrown music and arts festival, Homemake - like the name implies - is a showcase of music, art, film, literature, and performance by Sydney artists.

Australia's Pub Rock

Australia's Pub Rock is a phenomenon that has been growing in popularity in recent years. The festival is held in various locations around the country, with a focus on local music and community engagement.
Dear Dr Travel,
In spite of the economic climate, I would still like to travel for about 2 months after graduating but I would also like to get my feet wet. What are your suggestions? I would like to travel to Europe without getting stuck with a city map. I would also like to travel for a month or two on the continent, I mean any country. Any suggestions? Do you have any suggestions?

Sophie Kang

Dear Dr Travel,
I read about the travel of the Swiss in the last edition of Xmas. However, I most of the time, I run at train stations and being permanently without luggage. Do you have any suggestions? How can I suggest suggestions?

Tony Sin

Hello Tony,
Sounds like you know what you want from your trip buddy. I understand your point about being your own travel guide when travelling by rail. I have also endured tough days travelling with lager hostels on package tours where you just can’t choose your hotel partner or get off wherever you want. I’ve decided to travel with STA Travel’s Explore South America which offers a Hop-on Hop-off travel network within 31 cities in the following 9 countries: Spain, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Germany, Czech Republic, Austria, Switzerland and Italy. This style of travel, designed for backpackers and independent travelers, allows you to travel at your own pace – you can change your travel days as long as you like. Every time you travel, you are guaranteed a comfy coach complete with reclining seats, on-board movies and even power ports to recharge all your gadgets. This bus also has an on-board bus guide so you can ask all about your next destination: where to go, what to see, where to stay.

Click on stravalac.com.au/tours/50254 for more information.

Aloha Shanel!
Well done on taking the first step in travelling beyond the common HBOING. Adventure Holidays will take you on unforgettable journeys throughout the world. Some will provide serenity and peace in remote locations, while others will bring you closer to nature. STA Travel’s preferred partner GAP Adventures bursts the tourist bubble and shows you the real world and gives you an authentic experience. GAP also gives great value for money by keeping group sizes small (average of 12 per group) and sticking to small-scale accommodations and ground-stay style of travel.

On such adventure trips, prepare for a great cross-section of culture: One day you might be cycling along rice fields, the next you might be hiking in the mountains, the next you might be in the jungle, or you might be on a boat, or you might be in the desert. Whatever the adventure, you will be more than just getting from A to B. The same applies for the accommodation too. Whatever and whenever it is, your nights will reflect the local flavour. Rooms are based on same-sex twin-share, so even if you travel alone, you don’t have to pay extra!

Click on stravalac.com.au/Gap.htm to start looking at the thousands of experiences that you can enjoy even while on an Adventure holiday.

Dear Dr Travel,
I have been travelling for so long as I can remember. I have decided to break my current paths and go on an adventure holiday just so I can tell my children that I went on an adventure holiday. Can you help me plan it in the right direction but bear in mind that it is my best-egg on an adventure holiday?

Sharon Gomes
Kiteboarding, kitesurfing, flysurfing are all different names for the same wonderful sport. If you haven’t already seen it by now, I do implore you to crawl out from under that rock you are hiding under or that couch that you have been vegetating in for far too long. In any case, just for the uninstructed few, kiteboarding is a combination of surfing, wakeboarding and stunt kite flying rolled into one.

Oh Sh*t!
Yee Haa!

To get into the sport of kitesurfing, lessons are available locally or you could pop right into. Vietnam or Thailand for a short holiday or long training session. Watch the seasons. We are in the peak season when the winds are at their highest. The best time to go would be during the southwest monsoon. There are also International kiteboarding Organisations-affiliated schools with qualified instructors. Thoroughly check with the schools and instructors who are not IKA certified will kill you with cheaper lessons here, but try to ascertain is to stick with the qualified instructors. Kiteboarding can be dangerous and even life-threatening if done improperly.

I’m not going to sugar coat this and tell you it’s an easy sport to get into. It takes commitment. It is both expensive and hard to do. Your initial lessons will be 3 days and it will take another month or two after with constant practice to ride at the most basic level. The learner cannot get a lot faster than these. In Singapore most people in the sport ride for lesson coaching up and down and doing simple jumps. These are individuals who do try to push the envelope and represent Singapore in overseas competitions.

Our kite featured in this photos is Aaron, Hau and have been to several competitions in the region, including Japan, South Korea and Malaysia. He has also ridden in places like Egypt, Austria, Indonesia and a whole host of other locales. I love the sport! It makes a point to try new things in the environment and get a chance. Competitions drive me to continue to progress in the sport and keep it interesting. I cannot imagine a sport that can be fun for you to do?

You can do the same trick 10 different ways. After you’ve got that, think of something that takes the same path and harder path on the board for grab. Landing a new trick gives me no of euphoria and adrenaline. It gives my life meaning.

Some of the other good places to note around the region are Vietnam, New Zealand, China and Taiwan. There are a whole host of options available and you have to do is Google it.

Aaron is a qualified IKA instructor: he is not the only full time job who teaches for a pro shop, Constant Wind, based in Twisted Beach. About learning his love for the sport into a career. It teaches to promote the sport so more people will learn how awesome it is. I don’t have to explain the benefits of kiteboarding, but it is a great way to get into windsurfing, surfing and wakeboarding.

If this article hasn’t already gotten you all fired up, then go check out www.cabinaholics.com. It’s a site that showcases the different accessories and some of the equipment looks like. Kiteboarding is a way of life and because I do it frequently, I can tell you it is wildly addictive and surprisingly spiritual. There’s just something about being out on the water alone that sets everything right and before you know it, you are on the same day and your surroundings. Ohhhhh!
Off the Beaten (Career) Track

ODDUR TESTER

Every time you have a chance like this to do something new. If you've never heard your old talent wouldn't be there, look no further because we have found you the career of your life. According to the website for money.com, a chemistry background is a must, so we have taken you on a career path. As a professional food tester, you'll learn to analyze and develop new cooking techniques. You'll work in a kitchen, taste test new dishes, and rate their flavor, texture, and overall appeal. Your job is to ensure that the dishes meet the highest standards of taste and quality. You'll work with a team of chefs, food scientists, and quality assurance personnel.

PROFESSIONAL FACEDDIE

Also known as social media strategists, you will be leading the marketing and sales teams at a local clothing store. These professionals are responsible for creating and implementing marketing strategies to increase sales and brand awareness. You'll work closely with the design team to develop new collections, and you'll be responsible for coordinating promotions and events. Your role will be to ensure that the store's image is consistent across all channels. You'll need to have a strong background in marketing and experience working in the fashion industry.

CORPORATE BANK ROBBER

Now, we're not recommending that you join a bank robbery scheme, but if you happen to have a flair for creative things and you're tired of your 9-to-5 job, why not consider a job in the corporate bank robber world? Large banks actually hire people to try to break into their computer systems, break into vaults, and cause fake robberies. Biddlefield, a former bank robber, was arrested for causing damage to computer systems.

ENGLISH TEACHER

This might not be a job that you'd like to do full-time, but it definitely allows you to travel to places like Japan, Korea, Russia, China to teach English as a foreign language. Of course, you'd need some basic teaching qualifications - like TESL, which is a 12-week program - before you proceed.

WEIRD JOBS

College graduation marks a huge turning point in your life. The biggest change you'll have to come to is accepting the entrance into the full-time working force. Sound exciting? Actually, it can be. If you're not looking forward to a boring job, then maybe something more quirky might be right for you. They may not all be long-term careers, and some might not even have a decent pay. Check out the off-the-wall career choices below (yes, people actually do these things) for some ideas to spark your imagination and maybe...just maybe...help you look forward to working after (or during) college.

UNRATED

Your brand here

BRAND AMBASSADOR

Think you're the life of your campus? If you're the go-to person for new products, this could be your dream job. You'll need to have a good sense of fashion and a confident personality. You'll be responsible for promoting new products and creating buzz around them. You'll need to be able to work well under pressure and have excellent communication skills.

PARANORMAL INVESTIGATOR

If you have no fear of the supernatural and love to explore the unexplained, then being a paranormal investigator is for you. You can be a ghost hunter and help the Sierra Paranormal Investigators debunk myths and ghosts. You'll use a variety of tools, including cameras and audio recorders, to gather evidence of paranormal activity. You'll need to be able to work well under pressure and have a strong sense of ethics.
Contributed by Kelly Morse, Sarah Kate Smith

Green Day, Simple Plan, Linkin Park. Sound like a dream lineup for a college indie rock fest? Hell, yeah! What about West Grand Boulevard, The Stewarts or My Little Airport? Drawing a blank? While they're not the pop sensation many beloved American indie bands are, Asian indie bands are making their waves around the world. Asian pop music is no stranger to local music fans, with boy bands like Korean sensation DBSK, Taiwanese heartthrob Fahrenheit and Japanese group Arashi getting a decent market share of rabid fans. But get together a bunch of talented guys and make them actually write and play their own music? Suddenly they're about as popular as a college kid from the Chess Club with Star Trek posters on his dorm room wall.

Is this because there is a severe lack of good talent? Is it because we don't know where to find them? Or do we only recognize what everyone else thinks is cool? Like a sleeping giant, Asia has definitely risen to the rock challenge. We look at 5 Asian cities for a diverse answer to the Asian indie rock music scene. From the well-established indie rock scene of Hong Kong to the burgeoning phenomenon in India to the experimental Japanese music, these fresh artists have to say.

Japan

Singapore's had a fairy-tale affair with indie rock for a number of years. Many indie bands are more than just cool, more than interesting, they're gaining in popularity. While Singaporean pop has been mostly done with, indie rock has taken its place. The first generation of groups, like My Little Airport, My Sound and My Life, are now more popular than ever. The next generation of bands, like The Stewarts and My Little Airport, are also making waves. The problem is that people have to go out of their way to find music that they'll really enjoy and like. In their own way, both these bands are trying to make it happen. And college students are definitely buying into it.

The Stewarts

Aside from making their sounds more accessible, indie bands can use the Internet to market themselves. "With a label backing you, the Internet's the next best way to promote original music," says a college student. "If you're good, you can play so many live shows you won't even think of the Internet anymore." Everyone admits that so many local bands are making their way difficult. Indie bands are playing secret shows, all the time, so you can't buy tickets online. The venues are generally very small and don't attract a larger crowd. Indie bands are typically unsigned and have to play for free.

Dark the Giant

With thousands of successful bands, there are thousands more trying to hit big time. For these up-and-coming bands, the last thing they need is for good songs to go unheeded. Luckily for them, there are a few unique places that have taken note. "We encourage our readers to support local music," says a magazine editor. "It's a great way to support local talent and get to know new bands." All 5 groups play or sell shows a week for little money, while looking for a job. While some make a living playing gigs, many are still looking for that break. It's a tough life.
Hong Kong

The Hong Kong indie rock scene seems to be getting better and better. Locals are coming to local music festivals and concerts and starting bands, which offers opportunities for local musicians to perform and connect with fans. A decade ago, you could see a lot of local bands playing in school and partying, and now there are more venues where they can perform. The band '31st' have toured with international bands and have played on TV shows and radio stations. They have a growing following and are booking more gigs in Hong Kong. The band's sound is characterized by its energetic and catchy melodies. They have released two albums and have a dedicated fan base.

In Hong Kong, there are several music festivals and concerts that feature local and international bands. These events are organized by local music venues and organizations, and they attract music lovers from all around the city. The Hong Kong music scene is diverse, with a wide variety of genres represented. There are also several local music groups and bands that are gaining popularity and making a name for themselves. The local music scene is dynamic and evolving, with new bands emerging and old ones gaining momentum. It is a wonderful time to be a music lover in Hong Kong!
Cheat Sheet

1. Type of Biology
   - Chemical Biology
     - DNA
     - Protein Synthesis
   - Biological
     - DNA
     - RNA

2. Biography
   - DNA
     - Double Helix
     - Replication
   - Protein Synthesis
     - DNA to RNA to Protein

3. Cheat Sheet
   - DNA
   - RNA
   - Protein

4. Cheat Sheet
   - DNA
   - RNA
   - Protein

---

Ireland

Ireland is an island off the west coast of Great Britain. It is divided into two parts: Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. The capital city is Dublin. The official language is Irish, and English is widely spoken. The climate is temperate, with mild winters and cool summers. The economy is driven by services, particularly finance, tourism, and technology. Famous landmarks include the Blarney Stone and the Cliffs of Moher.

---

Study in Ireland

Ireland offers a unique blend of culture, history, and natural beauty. It is a great destination for study abroad programs, with a strong focus on Irish studies and the arts. The country is rich in heritage and offers a wide range of academic and cultural opportunities.
Addicted to Craic!

The Irish are famous for their friendliness and their love of ‘craic’ – an everyday word in Ireland for fun, entertainment and good company. Add to this their deep and sometimes quirky traditions, and it’s no surprise that they’ll find any excuse to have a good time at any time of the year. Minstrels and tinsel-clad carol boards go their little tapping in the chilly morning breeze. Festivals in Ireland is known for including the Cara Music Festival, Cork Jazz Festival and the Electric Picnic. Culture thrives in the many arts and theater performances, at the Dublin Opera Festival. There are food festivals, sporting events and music happening here that ensure that there’s never a dull moment. It’s a great way to experience Ireland’s fascinating history and vibrant contemporary culture, filled with a hearty dose of ‘craic’!

MY PERFECT DAY

"College days are so much fun, and we pick one would be a trip to Dublin. On this perfect day, I’d arrive in Dublin in the morning, and then spend the day exploring the city. I would start by visiting the National Museum of Ireland – Archaeology, followed by a stroll through St. Stephen’s Green. After that, I’d visit the Guinness Storehouse and then head to the Temple Bar area for some great food and drinks. Finally, I’d end the day with a visit to the Steak and Guinness Pub for a few rounds of Guinness. It would be a perfect day!

Aditi Das, Law, Dublin City University

SURF'S UP

Orange skies. Winding rivers. Mystical mountains. Rolling greenery. Farmer’s fields. You’ll be forgiven if you think this sounds like a landscape out of an agrotourism ad. In fact, it’s the picturesque countryside of Ireland. Ireland is renowned for its scenic beauty, and its capital city, Dublin, has become a haven for outdoor enthusiasts. If you’re in the mood to hike, paddle, cycle or even stay, there is no shortage of the many places to do them. Choose from the 1,500km of recreational routes, the 700km of main roads, the 400km of coastal walks, the 150km of rivers and streams, and the 50km of lakes, all with breathtaking views.

In the Boondocks

Cycling in the Mountains

MY PERFECT DAY

"My perfect day is flying to the Caribbean for a long legal internship with a local law firm. I love the vibrant atmosphere of the city, and I enjoy spending my evenings exploring the local culture and trying new foods. It’s a perfect way to blend work and play in a beautiful and sunny destination.

Amy Jordan, Health Sciences, University of Limerick

Hangin’ with Mates

With 10% of Ireland’s population under the age of 25, Ireland is one of the most exciting places in the world to be a student. The fruits of the country’s education system, the vast majority of which is contributed to the case of everyone adapting into student life in Ireland. Add to that the fact that Irish campuses are more vibrant and social, and you’re sure to have a memorable experience. There are so many ways to get to know the people and other cultures, and you can’t help but try new things and enjoy yourself in the process.

Cara O’Brien, Business Economics and Social Science, Trinity College

BOOKS CALL ME

Old School

In Ireland, there is a long tradition of education – what started as a centre for monastic studies in the Middle Ages has evolved into one of the most renowned educational centers for modern technology and science in the world today. One of the most popular Irish experiences is a stay at a university, which is steeped in history and culture. It’s a great way to experience Ireland’s fascinating history and delightful contemporary culture, filled with a hearty dose of ‘craic’!
Ireland Profile:
Here are some of the top regions around Ireland...

Galway: Cultural Capital
This former fishing city is now Ireland's 5th largest city and 4th largest in the west. It is renowned for its cultural life and is known as the "Cultural Capital of the West" due to its rich history of music, art, and literature. The city is home to the University of Galway and is known for hosting a number of cultural events throughout the year. The streets are lined with restaurants, bars, and pubs, and the city is surrounded by beautiful natural landscapes.

Dublin: Hedonistic Capital
Dublin is Ireland's capital city and is known for its cosmopolitan lifestyle and lively nightlife. The city is home to a number of cultural institutions, including the National Gallery of Ireland, the Chester Beatty Library, and the Dublin Zoo. The city is also known for its literary and musical heritage, with a number of notable writers and musicians hailing from Dublin. The city is surrounded by beautiful beaches and parks, and is a popular destination for tourists from around the world.

Cork: Rebel City
Cork is the second largest city in Ireland and is known for its rich history and cultural heritage. The city is a hub of creativity and innovation, with a number of cultural institutions, including the Cork Opera House and the Cork International Film Festival. The city is also home to a number of renowned universities, including University College Cork and the University of Limerick. Cork is known for its vibrant music scene and its lively bars and pubs.

RICH EDUCATIONAL HISTORY:
1. Founded in 1592 by Queen Elizabeth I, Trinity is Ireland's oldest and most prestigious university, one of the seven ancient universities in the English-speaking world and the only one in the Irish language.
2. Trinity's home is the Bank of Kells - a huge, lavishly decorated religious setting dating back to 1127 and arguably the most remarkable building in the world. And another place to house it is Trinity's academic library - one of the finest and largest collections of books, ancient manuscripts and historic maps, and a collection that is growing by over 5,000 books per year.
3. Founded in 1970, Trinity College's School of Business is the oldest undergraduate student group in the world. For over 200 years, "The Home," as it's known, has been the de facto home of the Trinity students who hold their skills in critical reasoning, negotiation and communication, with the help of visiting guests like Al Pacino, Desmond Tutu and Edward Kennedy.

Here's What They Think...

Fame of Trinity graduates who went on to declare their own genius in everything from literature, science, technology to sport and politics - including Irish president Mary McAleese, Irish doisir Eamonn Gilmore and the 1st Irish President, Sir Henry John, and Nobel Prize winner Samuel Beckett and Brian教室er, from just one of Trinid's psychiatrists, you might find yourself abroad.

The international language genius Oscar Wilde was preparing through classes and was asked to be attacked. Apparently he uttered the following words: "I have nothing to declare. But you are." The fact that it's the 16th century or the 21st century, Trinity graduates who have always had a lot to declare. Trinity is one of the oldest schools in the world and ranks in the top 1% of all universities globally it's named 1st globally in nanotechnology, and has an impressive list of Nobel Prize-winning alumni.

WHAT YOU'LL FIND ON-CAMPUS:
1. Trinity College Dublin is the heart of downtown Dublin, one of the world's most pedestrian-friendly cities. Parking is not available, so walk everywhere. The schools' ancient cloistered quadrangle, public halls and historic architecture make it one of Ireland's most iconic sites.
2. Despite its historic structure, Trinity's home to the Art Institutes, research centres, laboratories, IT and sports facilities, making it a perfect balance of architectural beauty and cutting-edge practicality.
3. Trinity students have the option of joining any of its 93 student societies covering a broad range of interests - all funded within the College and covering the most dynamic and active set of university student societies in the country. Students can get active in the college's new Sport Centre, with its large swimming pool and dressing hall or even in other fields, including the College's own baseball, where you can join or even run.
Ukule Hey!

Jason Arnes, Colbie Callait, Elvis Presley, George Harrison. They have something else in common besides having names with two words. All four of them are fans of the ukulele. Uku-what? It’s that cute guitar-like instrument often associated with Hawaiian music. (Please refer to the sidebar for more information.)

Some may not even be able to correctly pronounce the name, but Simon and Glyn, two local enthusiasts of the instrument, have taken a leap of faith in setting up a ukulele store. Ukulele Movement, right here on our sunny island. CAMPUS visited their office one afternoon and was mightily impressed not just by the cozy atmosphere, but the glitter in their eyes when talking about the ukulele (also abbreviated as the uke).

"The got obsessed with it"

Call it fad, but it was love at first sight, when a friend introduced Hawaiian musician Israel Kamakawiwo’ole’s rendition of “Over the Rainbow” to them last year. In Simon’s words, Glyn “got obsessed with it”. Being the good guy he was, Simon trawled the Web to find a uke for her as a Christmas present.

It was also then that he discovered there was a uke revival in the United States and United Kingdom, which has yet to reach Southeast Asia. The availability of ukes in Singapore was pathetic, for lack of a better word. Determined to spread the happy word about ukes, after Simon and Glyn got hold of their first uke in November, they decided in December to set up Singapore’s first uke retail store and register their company in January. 2014.

"Instructively, it felt right.”

Why the rush? Simon and Glyn explained that they have always thought of going into business (Simon was an art director and Glyn a marketing manager, before venturing into trading), but never materialised. She was the dreamer, he the practicalist, putting down her ideas time after time. However, this time, both thought “instructively, it felt right.”

Setting up a store in a handful of months is still a close act though, no matter what your gut says. Glyn explained, “If you like it, you will try to make it work. Later, you may not have the drive anymore.”

They tested the waters by importing 20 ukes in February and it sold out quickly, they imported 40 more and the response was just as good. That boosted their confidence on the uke market in this region.

There was the issue of shop location. Naturally, they wanted to rent a shop in town, but the monthly rent was simply too much to bear. Luckily for them, their nice little apartment in Little India was under-utilised and thus became their home office. Previously, they only and thus became their home office. Previously, they only rented customers on an appointment basis, but from June this year, they officially opened their doors to everyone.

"We shouldn’t stereotype our customers".

Ukulele Movement has close to 2500 members in their Facebook group, with customers ranging from primary kids to senior citizens. In fact, you may find a uke player in the most unexpected person ever.

Glyn told us that they had a customer who looks like a typical uncle at a coffee shop, and even spoke Hidden to them. However, he was surprisingly a music enthusiast.

"It was definitely an eye-opener for us, and taught us that we shouldn’t stereotype.”

When CAMPUS visited them, a group of Thai customers were there looking through the collection of ukes. One of them was buying a uke for his brother back home.

Glyn told us that they actually have customers from all over Asia, and the community is active. They connected through the Internet. Making no other purchasing habits. In their hometown, there are fans who will specially drop by Singapore to get their uke.

The community is also an unexpectedly friendly bunch. Glyn remembered there was one lady who actually got herself a new Zealand customer who’s a particular uke book, and when the fad went back, she sent the book over as a present.

When asked why the community behaves this way, Glyn shrugged, saying this is just how they are. She explained that the uke is a tool to promote social bonding and you produce a happy sound that makes it more approachable.

"Uku-what?" The ukulele (variously spelled ukulele) in the UK is also abbreviated as the uke, is a subset of the guitar family of instruments, generally with four courses of strings. Ukulele commonly come in four sizes: soprano, concert, tenor and baritone. Developed in the 1820s, the ukulele is based on a small guitar-like instrument, the machete, introduced to the Hawaiian Islands by Portuguese immigrants. It gained great popularity elsewhere in the United States during the early 20th century and from there spread internationally.

According to Queen Liliuokalani, the last Hawaiian monarch, the name means “the gift that came here", from the Hawaiian words ‘ulu (gift) or ‘ulu (fruit) (to come). It is pronounced as ‘oo-key-lee-ay’ in true Hawaiian style.

Ukulele is various past and present that you can YouTube about. Fenix Tail, Israel Kamakawiwo’ole, Jake Shimabukuro and James Hill.

Source. Wikipedia

Want to Win One of These Ukes?

See next page.
What's Up Doc?

 desde injuries to ailments and everything you want to know about what's going on in your body but are too embarrassed to ask or too cheap to pay for answers, check in on the doc!

---

About the Doc...

Dr. Lin J. Kang

Dr. J. Kang specializes in orthopedics at Mount Elizabeth Medical Center, Singapore. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of California, Berkeley, and a Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of California, San Francisco. Dr. J. Kang is board certified by the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery and is a member of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons. He is also a member of the American Orthopaedic Association and the California Orthopaedic Association. He has published numerous articles on various orthopedic topics and is a frequent speaker at national and international orthopedic conferences. Dr. J. Kang has been recognized as one of the best orthopedic surgeons in Singapore and is consistently ranked among the top 1% of orthopedic surgeons worldwide.

---

Muscle Cramps

Muscle cramps are a common painful problem, often affecting people who exercise regularly, as well as those who are not physically active. They often affect the large muscles of the legs, arms, and trunk, and may start at one area of the body and then spread. Muscle cramps can occur for various reasons, such as exercise-related muscle fatigue, dehydration, electrolyte imbalance, and nerve damage. Treatment options for muscle cramps include rest, gentle stretching, and drinking plenty of fluids. In some cases, medication may be necessary to control muscle cramps.

---

Join Supplements

The table shows full of supplements that are purported to help with pain and reduce the risk of arthritis. There are many brands and many different presentations. These supplements are not necessarily for everyone, and it's important to talk to a healthcare professional before starting any new supplement regimen. The table includes information on the active ingredients in each of the products and their potential benefits. It's important to note that while some supplements may help with pain and arthritis, it's not a one-size-fits-all solution, and it's important to consult with a healthcare professional before starting any new supplement regimen.

---

Simen & Glyn

Simen and Glyn admitted that their new website has been met with mixed reviews. Some people love it, while others think it's too overwhelming. However, they are committed to making sure that the site is user-friendly and informative. They are also working on expanding the site to include more content and features. Simen and Glyn are excited about the potential for their new website and are looking forward to seeing how it evolves over time.

---

Win Yourself a Makala Soprano Ukulele

This is a good entry level ukulele for anyone to start learning on - PLUS you'll win pre-strung with Aquila strings and a free gig bag!

To win, simply fill in this form and send it to the address below:

Send it to us before November 30, 2009.

---

Gym Fitness

Gym Fitness is offering a new program for weight loss. The program includes a combination of aerobic exercise, strength training, and nutritional guidance. The program is designed to help people achieve their weight loss goals in a safe and effective way. For more information, visit the website or call 123-4567.
Going for a quiet ukulele gathering by the beach? Head bangin’ at a rock concert? Heading outdoors for an all-weekend music fest? Check out the threads some folks (from our office) wear to these shindigs.

Beachside Beats
Our interns are firm fans of beach parties—heck, we’re on an island after all! Party like it’s the beginning of Da Bats and hope they don’t bring out the foam machines. And when you’re on the beach, nothing’s more practical than easy peel-off clothes so you can jump into the oh-so-murky waters. Shoes optional.

Dude: T-shirt and shorts from Uniqlo.
Chick: Dress from Uniqlo.

Indoor Concert
You’ve got tickets to the next concert. It’s indoors, so you’ve got a roof over your head and a sound assurance that you’ll be stone-deaf the next day. Stand out with loud prints and colours and maybe, just maybe, you’ll get noticed. Just hope it’s not by the bouncer.

Dude: T-shirt and jeans from Desigual.
Chick: Top from Bershka, bottom from Uniqlo.

Outdoor Festival
So you’re attending an outdoor concert, but you’re worried about the heat (who doesn’t—it’s Singapore after all). Ditch the heavy shirts for softer materials— who says you can’t stand out in cotton? Hey girls, the ‘Mori’ (forest) look is THE look this season in Japan, so grab your sack dresses and flats! It’s cool and cute.

Dude: T-shirt from Pull and Bear, pants from Desigual.
Chick: Dress from Desigual.

This is not a sack dress!

Bring the 80s back in zebra prints! Fierce.

Dude: T-shirts and shorts from Uniqlo.
Chick: Dress from Uniqlo.

Roll ‘em up! Go barefoot! A good excuse to not iron your pants.

Plaids, or checkers or tartans. Call ‘em what you like, we just love ‘em!
Another Fking Day in Paradise

By Gan Phua Beng

The cloudless sky lets the sun brilliantly light up the quaint wooden houses. As you walk down these same streets, the front of your nose start getting caked in dust from the wooden shingles. The smell of wood and lime fill the air. You can't help but notice the beautiful views of the previous night's debauchery. The streets are quiet, almost too quiet. The silence is breaking the sound of the waves. As you turn the corner, you see the sign. "Welcome to Hell. Are you here?"

Before you forget to keep you party-bpressive party animals informed, remember to try and stay clear of the local alcohol. Almonds, arek, black licorice root, and unbelievably enough, talk stuff. You'll find that some Norwegians know as much about alcohol as they do about Ålesund. As you walk down the street, you can hear the sound of the waves crashing against the shore. The smell of salt and sea fills your nostrils. You can't help but notice the beautiful views of the previous night's debauchery. The streets are quiet, almost too quiet. The silence is breaking the sound of the waves. As you turn the corner, you see the sign. "Welcome to Hell. Are you here?"

Let's jump out of the beach setting for a bit. Leave the endless beach, the picturesque sunsets and the sand among the dunes. Being students, you probably would not have realized, but in the last week of September, your parents probably enjoyed another 100 degrees of grey hair. Allowing for the road closures of the BUSIEST blooming roads in the country. Formula 1. Bunt is not, usually girls pronouncing about arguing over who has the most hair on Black Beach. They are slowly trying to soak up the sun. There aren't any flies flying along the beach, but there are a lot of flying insects buzzing around trying to make a buck off you. Fake beetles, wound curugers, moths, fruit, fake butterflies, massages, and the like.

Despite everything, Bali is a great place to be. The paradise in Asia. In fact, you can get Brisbane, you can get a lot of different things you want, and I mean anything, at a price that will not require you to forsake your second semester in school.

THE LIST

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Calories</th>
<th>Fat(g)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>269</td>
<td>14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>607</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>746</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>694</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>492</td>
<td>27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>381</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>220</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>164</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>132</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Egg Pita
Chicken Rice
Chicken Kung Pao
Kare Kare
Hokkien Mee
Bak Kut Teh Soup
Hot Fun
Kaya Toast
Kaya Slam
Laska Lemak
Mee Siam
Sambal Mee
Mee Robbus
Mee Rani
Mee Bugis
Kokai
Such a great place to be. The paradise in Asia. In fact, you can get Brisbane, you can get a lot of different things you want, and I mean anything, at a price that will not require you to forsake your second semester in school.

I was just thinking about that one fateful day when my father dropped the bomb on me. I could deal with Santa Claus being taken away from me, or even that one week when my dad took away our video games. But when my dad told me I had to stay home for the weekend, I didn't think it would be as bad as it was. I thought it would just be a few days. But then, on the second day, I realized how much I liked being able to go out and do things. The traffic congestion due to the road closures are a royal pain in the ass. Pardon my language. I just got so excited when it came to traffic.

Till the next issue when you read GFB say, "Hey, you think I can anyhow chance place with NSCBI?"
Luchador Instructions:

1. Start creating your own personality by colouring your Luchador mask. Buy your own crayons, or steal them from your art major roommie or your baby siblings.

2. Carefully cut out your masterpiece. Use a photocopier to enlarge it if you have a huge (or particularly ugly) face.

3. Strip down to your colourful Lycra tights or tightie whities, and you’re ready to go!

4. Make your own easier versions of the moves outlined below. Don’t forget to give it a new name – like El Chong – and practice on your unsuspecting foes!

5. Stressed from overbearing teachers or boy/girlfriends? Feel like you need to just get out and let out a scream? Sounds like a great way to let off some steam! Here at Campus, we like to take it one step further: get anonymous under a mask and tackle your friends Lucha Libre style! If you’ve seen Nacho Libre, then you’ll know what you have to do.

---

Campana:

Grab a hold of your prone opponent’s feet and tuck them under your armpits, and as you stand up, grab their hands and very slowly carry them off the ground! Make sure you’ve got a good back yourself.

Diavali:

Stand between the legs of an unsuspecting lying opponent, facing his head, pick up both legs, step your right leg across his left leg, and cross right leg over the left on your right knee. Hook your right arm around the crossed legs, and turn to the right, crouching to apply pressure.

Scorpion Deathlock:

Wrap a forward-facing opponent’s legs from standing behind them and then apply a gutwrench to lift the opponent up off the ground (you gotta be a lot bigger than your opponent, obviously) and continue lifting and falling backwards until your opponent falls on their back.

Wheelbarrow Suplex:

Wheelbarrow suplex. Now a hold of your prone opponent’s feet and tuck them under your armpits, and as you stand up, grab their hands and very slowly carry them off the ground! Make sure you’ve got a good back yourself.

---

Note: these moves are performed by professionals so if you do them, you might end up in the emergency room for embarrassing reasons.
The biggest discovery a student makes in Australia is what they’re capable of achieving.

As a study destination that offers both quality of education and quality of lifestyle, Australia is the perfect place to develop both academically and personally. In a country that’s also a continent, there’s plenty of room to grow. Start your journey here www.studyinaustralia.gov.au

Study in Australia